besieged all day by an army of politicians.

"Has there been any change in the slate indorsed by the Executive Committee on Monday night?" Mr. Murphy was asked.

"What slate?" he shot back. "There is no slate. I read in some papers that the Executive Committee had agreed upon a list of candidates to be supported in the primaries. That is absolutely untrue. On the contrary it was distinctly understood at the meeting that the organization would not commit itself to the candidacy of any individual at this time."
